Background

The Thurston Climate Mitigation Plan (TCMP) provides a framework for local government action and regional collaboration to reduce local contributions to climate change. While the TCMP focuses on the strategies where local government can play a leading role, addressing the causes of climate change will require action from the state and partners throughout our community—including the private sector, nonprofits, nongovernmental organizations, and individuals.

The TCMP specifically identifies several partner organizations in Thurston County whose work helps to advance the Plan’s strategies and actions. These organizations are referred to as “supporting partners” in the TCMP and include Intercity Transit, LOTT Clean Water Alliance, Puget Sound Energy, Thurston Conservation District, and Thurston Economic Development Council.

Earlier this year, representatives from Intercity Transit, LOTT Clean Water Alliance, and Puget Sound Energy updated the Executive Committee on their progress in implementing TCMP strategies and actions. During this meeting, the last two supporting partners will provide implementation updates to the Executive Committee. Presenters for the upcoming meeting include:

- Stephanie Bishop, Thurston Conservation District
- Gene Angel and Michael Cade, Thurston Economic Development Council
