MEMORANDUM

TO: Thurston Climate Mitigation Collaborative (TCMC) Community Advisory Workgroup (CAW)

FROM: TCMC CAW Member Tom Crawford

DATE: July 15, 2025

SUBJECT: Workforce Development and the TCMP

Requested Action

Vote to approve the formal request to place a discussion about workforce development on an upcoming EC meeting.

Purpose of this Action

Follow the protocols set forth in the CAW Charter for requesting agenda items be added to future EC meetings. Background and Analysis

Many of the actions included in the Thurston Climate Mitigation Plan (TCMP) once implemented will require a supply of workers with specific skills to complete the work. Yet, workforce development for climate-related jobs is not directly addressed in the TCMP. Recruiting and training these workers is a critical component of the community-wide infrastructure needed to ensure TCMP implementation yields results to meet greenhouse gas emission reduction targets. With five years remaining to meet the 2030 GHG reduction target adopted by local jurisdictions, I assert that it is time for the TCMC Executive Committee to recommend to their jurisdictions that budget and staff be assigned to workforce development needed to implement the TCMP.

The following actions and strategies in the TCMP require ample supply of skilled workers:

Buildings and Energy Sector

- Strategy B1. Reduce energy use in existing residential buildings.
- Strategy B2. Reduce energy use in existing commercial/industrial buildings.
- Strategy B3. Reduce energy use across building types.
- Strategy B4. Reduce energy use in new construction or redevelopment.
- Strategy B5. Increase the production of local renewable energy.
- Strategy B6. Convert to cleaner fuel sources.

Transportation and Land Use Sector

- Strategy T3. Increase adoption of electric vehicles. (charging stations)

- Strategy T4. Increase the use of public transit.
- Strategy T5. Increase use of active forms of travel (such as bicycling, walking). (lanes, trails)

Agriculture, Forests, and Prairies Sector

- Strategy A1. Reduce emissions from agricultural practices.
- Strategy A2. Support agricultural practices that sequester carbon.

I've completed a rough calculation of the number of additional workers needed between now and 2030 to fully implement the actions within Strategy B1 (Reduce energy use in existing residential buildings). To achieve 20% reduction in residential GHG emissions by 2030 we would need a minimum of 250 new jobs annually. Projecting this across the remaining strategies suggests new jobs requiring skilled workers in the thousands.

Based on my recent discussions with local organizations engaged in workforce development (Pacific Mountain Workforce Development Council, Thurston Lewis Mason Central Labor Council, and the Thurston Economic Development Council), some areas of need have been identified:

- There is no local contact and informational resource for workers interested in climate-related jobs on how to train for jobs that we expect to become available as a result of the actions described in the TCMP.
- There is a need to align jobs with the unique combination of skill sets that will be needed for many of the climate-related jobs, since these jobs require a different combination of skills than more traditional jobs. Re-aligning jobs around these skill sets is needed to support both workers and employers.
- Affordable housing can be difficult to find for workers within the County interested in climate-related jobs, making it difficult for employers to attract the workers needed for these jobs.

There may be additional barriers to recruiting and training workers for these jobs.

In order to ensure that workers are available to complete the needed work, I assert that local cities and the County have an essential role to play in providing staff support, adopting any necessary policies, and funding to ensure that necessary workforce development tools and programs are available in our region. Members of the TCMC EC are in the best position to advocate for this work with their respective jurisdictions. They can also engage elected officials from other jurisdictions (i.e. other cities, the Port of Olympia, school districts, the Thurston Conservation District, and others) to advocate for their participation in these workforce development efforts.

Engagement Questions

The CAW is asked to approve a recommendation to the TCMC EC, so that members of the Committee may advocate to their respective jurisdictions, and to other elected officials in Thurston County jurisdictions for a collaborative workforce development effort centered on ensuring sufficient workers are available to meet greenhouse gas emission reduction targets. This effort will tackle gaps in our workforce development system (for example, those described above), and implement solutions to fill those gaps, building on the systems, resources and processes already in place.

Decision options:

- a. Approve a recommendation to the EC to schedule a discussion on Workforce Development at a future meeting
- b. Do not approve a recommendation to the EC to schedule a discussion on Workforce Development at a future meeting.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Thurston Climate Mitigation Collaborative Community Advisory Workgroup

FROM: Thurston Climate Mitigation Collaborative Staff Team:
Alyssa Jones Wood, City of Tumwater
Linsey Fields, City of Lacey

DATE: July 15, 2025

SUBJECT: Review of Climate Bills in the 2025 Legislative Session

Requested Action

Read the memorandum and attachments. No formal action of the CAW is required.

Purpose of this Action

Providing information for CAW members on the results of the 2025 Washington State Legislative Session. This item was requested by the CAW to be included in a future agenda. The Staff Team and CAW members are working on finding a presenter for this information, which may or may not happen by the CAW meeting.

Background and Analysis

The Washington State 2025 Legislative Session ended on April 27, 2025. 1,953 bills were introduced with 433 passing the legislature. Multiple bills that would impact local climate work were introduced including, but not limited to:

HB 1015 and SHB1015 home energy performance reports for residences advertised for sale
HB 1117 prohibiting adoption of the California motor vehicle emission standards
HB 1409 concerning the clean fuels program
HB 1497 organics management
HB 1543 Increasing compliance pathways for the Clean Building Performance Standard
SHB 1514 expanding the use of thermal energy networks
SB 5036 requiring tracking and reporting of statewide greenhouse gas emissions
SB 5091 prohibiting adoption of California motor vehicle standards, greenhouse gas emissions
SB 5445 alternative investment in local energy resilience projects.

For more details about each bill, see Attachment A.

Additionally, the Governor also approved a state budget for 2025-2027. While funding continues to be available on a competitive grant basis to local governments through the Climate Commitment Act, the funding has been reduced in the 2025-2027 budget compared to the recent past. For example, the Home Electric Appliance Rebate (HEAR) program that TCMC jurisdictions used to fund Energize Thurston was allocated $80 million in the last budget for statewide implementation, but only $30 million in this budget. However, $5 million in Community Energy Efficiency Program funding was allocated, which had previously been used for the Energize Olympia program.

Climate Commitments in the Budget Packages Passed on Sine Die

April 29, 2025

This session, Clean & Prosperous Washington worked closely with the Legislature to ensure that – despite this challenging budget environment – we continued investing in our climate and clean energy commitments.

During difficult financial environments, Washington's Climate Commitment Act becomes all the more vital and effective. Our nation-leading, broadly-supported cap-and-invest system provides us with an independent, market-based revenue source that is unaffected by broader budget challenges or federal uncertainty. Thanks in no small part to the Climate Commitment Act, we are excited to see many significant investments in climate action and clean energy in the budgets passed by the Legislature on sine die.

You can find a breakdown of bill progress in last week's newsletter.

Topline Numbers

The 2025-2027 biennium budget passed by the Legislature includes $3 billion in Climate Commitment Act-generated revenue, with the majority of spending going toward efforts to decarbonize our transportation sector, which accounts for nearly 40 percent of statewide greenhouse gas emissions.

Key Transportation Budget Takeaways

As a primer, you can find our breakdown of the initial transportation budget proposal here.

Truck decarbonization

We are thrilled that the Legislature allocated $126 million for the Medium- and Heavy-Duty (MHD) Zero-Emission Vehicle (ZEV) voucher program, which represents approximately $20 million in new investments from the previous biennium's budget. Even in a challenging budget environment, this increase shows continued commitment from the Legislature for this important work.

In addition to the MHD ZEV voucher program, the Legislature allocates $25 million in grants for the deployment of alternative fuel vehicle charging and refueling infrastructure along state highways, and $15 million specifically to boost hydrogen infrastructure available to MHD vehicles. Finally, the Legislature increased funding for electric school buses, which are vital for improving the air Washington students, families, and teachers breathe.

Ferry and port electrification

The Legislature's budget accounted for some delays in hybrid-electric ferry conversion proposed by the Governor. However, the broader commitment to ferry and port electrification remains. In addition to converting diesel ferries to hybrid-electric, the budget includes $28 million for shorepower at the Northwest Seaport Alliance and $26.5 million for port electrification grants.

The data clearly shows that ferry and port electrification has extremely high return on investment in terms of emissions reduction, and it's crucial that these projects remain a priority for our state.

In case you missed it: Last week, the Washington State Department of Commerce released an exciting new update on the design for an all-electric hydrofoil ferry. You can read more and explore the design here.

Sustainable aviation fuel (SAF)

The final budget passed by the Legislature includes over $10 million in funding for sustainable aviation fuel (also called alternative jet fuel). Continued efforts to boost the SAF ecosystem are crucial for helping reduce transportation emissions while creating green jobs and generating economic opportunity.

Key Capital & Operating Budget Takeaways

You can find our breakdown of the initial capital budget proposal here.

Dairy Digesters

The Legislature adopted $13.7 million for dairy digester competitive grants. Funding for dairy digesters is important to the competitiveness of Washington dairies and is one of the highest yielding investments in terms of emissions reductions. You can find more information on the efficacy of dairy digesters by exploring Clean & Prosperous Institute's

one-pager on the Washington State University Knott Dairy Center Digester.

Hard-to-Decarbonize Grants

The Legislature reappropriated $49.8 million in funding for hard-to-decarbonize and economic development grants. These grants have significant return-on-investment and are crucial for facilitating emissions reductions in complex industrial processes.

Industrial Symbiosis

The Legislature adopted $5 million for industrial symbiosis, which is a growing and innovative field in waste reduction. These investments will help ensure Washington joins states like California and Texas in serving as a hub for clean, efficient industrial sites.

Improving Indoor Air Quality & Energy Efficiency

The Legislature also makes significant investments to improve indoor air quality and energy efficiency in public buildings like schools. These investments include: $35 million for Weatherization Plus Health, $17.5 million for classroom indoor air quality projects, and $10 million in new funding for Clean Energy Community Grants program, which distributes grants to facilities across the state, including schools.

Electric Vehicle (EV) Infrastructure

The Legislature adopted approximately $128 million for electric vehicle charging infrastructure, which represents approximately $23 million in new spending, in addition to reappropriations. While this does represent a slower rate of spending on EVs, Washington remains a national leader in EV adoption. Clean & Prosperous Institute recently published a newsletter that provides a deep-dive on Washington's EV progress and outlook.

What's Next

Sunday, April 27 was sine die, or the conclusion of the regular legislative session. The budget adopted by the Legislature is onto the Governor for review and action.

Clean & Prosperous Washington will provide updates on priority legislation and budget items as relevant. Stay tuned for a future newsletter breaking down how these investments reduce emissions, catalyze innovation, and create jobs.

2025 Legislative Session Recap

In the 2025 legislative session, Shift Zero priorities focused on funding for equitable clean energy upgrades and healthy home repairs for vulnerable communities across the state. Advocates gave voice to the many benefits that investments in Weatherization Plus Health, Home Electrification and Appliance Rebates, and the Community Energy Efficiency Program provide to households and small businesses in Washington. These programs are often transformational for the people they serve: an adult family home in King County now has air conditioning ahead of wildfire season thanks to a new heat pump installation; a home with new insulation and efficient heating systems lowers energy bills for a family living on low-incomes. They make a difference in everyday lives and in the larger transition away from fossil fuels in our homes and buildings.

Budget Priorities

Legislators were making very tough decisions this session, addressing a $16 billion shortfall over the next four years. In the final 2025-27 biennium budget Shift Zero advocates were pleased to see continued commitment and support for key building decarbonization programs, including:

- $30 million for the state's Home Electrification and Appliance Rebates program, with proviso recommendations specifying that the program includes renters, and at least 40% of program spending for vulnerable and overburdened populations (p.13-14);
- $35 million for Weatherization Plus Health, including $5 million for the Community Energy Efficiency Program keeping housing affordable, reducing energy bills, and improving health and safety for thousands of Washingtonians (p. 25-26);
- $3.5 million reappropriated for the Building Energy Upgrade Navigator, to support community outreach, information and assistance to ensure more Washingtonians can access home and building upgrades (p. 67-68).

Shift Zero members look forward to supporting successful implementation of these investments and using lessons learned to inform future policy and funding efforts.

Shift Zero Partner Priorities

- HB 1015, Home energy performance report, sponsored by Rep. Davina Duerr, made its way through the House but did not advance. This bill would set up a statewide standard structure for home energy scoring, providing a basic platform for local jurisdictions to opt-in to create local programs.

People for Climate Action led advocacy, and work will continue with support for cities and counties who plan to move forward with home energy score programs even without a state standard.

- HB 1514, Expanding the use of thermal energy networks (TENs), sponsored by Rep. Alex Ramel, passed! This year's work builds on the TENs pilot projects bill HB 2131 passed last session, and provides regulatory clarity for thermal energy companies by bringing them under the oversight of the Utilities and Transportation Commission (UTC), while offering exemptions for smaller systems and those already in development. Additionally, the bill allows electric utilities to offer discounted rates to TEN operators—under specific UTC-approved conditions—to enhance electrical grid efficiency.
- HB 1543, Increasing compliance pathways for the clean buildings performance standard, sponsored by Rep. Beth Doglio, passed! HB 1543 incorporates recommendations from the state-funded Clean Buildings Program workgroup to provide alternative metrics and flexibility to support compliance with the state's building performance standard. Additionally the bill prohibits penalties incurred from non-compliance from being passed along to tenants.

Thank you to the following legislators for your leadership advancing clean buildings in Washington State!
